The Mexican singer-songwriter Ricardo González who has been living in Belgium for the past 11 years, decides to undertake a new challenge: survive during one month off his earnings as a street musician.

Accompanied by filmmaker and friend, Andrés Lübbert, they leave from the city of Leuven with no money, carrying only a backpack full of motivation and his guitar. And so now both rely on Ricardo's busking skills to take them on a life-changing journey through France and Spain, where the meetings with several personalities will make one thing clearer than ever before: "Live your dreams, don't dream your Life."
